The Book Club of Texas

Announces a new publication

AS OTHERS SEE US

by

O. Henry

In conjunction with the O. Henry Museum in Austin, the Book Club of Texas is pleased to announce the publication of a previously unpublished story by O. Henry, As Others See Us.

Edited by Michael Hoinski, illustrated by Pulitzer Prize winner Ben Sargent, and designed and printed in a letterpress edition of 500 copies by Bradley Hutchinson, the book is available for $45 for members; $75 for non-members.

O. Henry is known to have written over 300 stories. The O. Henry Museum has recently acquired 5 previously unpublished manuscripts, including “As Others See Us.” “It was the one that grabbed me from the start,” says Hoinski, the Museum’s education coordinator. “It was uncharacteristically dark for O. Henry. It’s about an alcoholic who thinks he’s slick and no one is the wiser. But the opposite is true: Everyone is watching his sad unraveling, which culminates with a paranoia-inducing dose of absinthe and a flung battle-ax.”

We hope our members will avoid a battle-ax and enjoy this entertainment. The Book Club and the Museum shared expenses on this project and split the edition, 250 copies to the Book Club and 250 to the Museum. Sales at the Museum will support their operations; sales at the Book Club will support our efforts.

To renew your membership and to order your copy of As Others See Us, please contact Russell Martin or Terre Heydari at the DeGolyer Library, SMU. Selected backlist titles from the Book Club of Texas are also available; to see a list of titles in print, check the DeGolyer Library web page under “publications.”
